Old Business JSTOR costs to Government and non-profit research institutions

- Classifications
- To determine your participation fees for archival journal collections, JSTOR classifies government and non-profit research institutions based on size and amount of research its faculty and students conduct.
- There are five JSTOR classifications for Government and Non Profit Research Institutions: Very Small, Small, Medium, Large, and Very Large.
- Classification is based on size, budget, and library holdings at your organization. To receive your JSTOR classification, please contact us with the following information:
- Total number of staff at your organization or institution
- Number of researchers and library staff
- Total operating budget of your organization or institution (latest year available)
- Materials budget of your library (latest year available)
- Number of active serials subscriptions (print and electronic) your organization or institution holds
- Very Small $1500
- Small $2,500
